Calhoun's Outlaw Methods

It becomes necessary again to call attention to the desperate tactics employed by Patrick Calhoun and his United Railroads employes to escape trial on the merits of the bribery charges under which they lie.
Through a perversion of the process of a court of law Fremont Older, an earnest advocate of the graft prosecution, was kidnaped by Patrick Calhoun's private corps of bandits, masquerading as detective and lawyers.

The strange things that a corn belt philosopher saw, or imagined he saw, at the Cliff house
By Edward F. Cahill
The 1907 San Francisco will scarcely know whether to feel proud or embarrassed when he reads in the Kansas City Journal that with the hearing of the Fremont Cliff house case the final scene in the tragedy of the Fremont Cliff house has been consummated.

ONE GOOD THEORY DESERVES ANOTHER

It is a bad rule that will not work both ways. When Vancouver broke out in rows against the Japanese, the London Times, a part of the Canadian press and such pro-Japanese papers in this country as the New York Evening Post were quite sure that the disturbances were due to the villainous plotting of certain Americans, who had sneaked across the border to put the colonial Britisher up to blood and thunder.

THE NAVY IS A SHAM

A STRANGE discussion is raging like a blizzard of words at the east over the question whether the American navy is or is not a sham and a plaything. As the nation is weary of a matter of SOOOLONG'S A War to keep up the navy, it might seem that the first duty should be to ascertain the actual condition of efficiency of the navy of the United States.

JAPANESE COLONIES IN CALIFORNIA

THE Turlock Journal prints some particulars of the establishment of a large Japanese colony in the San Joaquin valley, which may serve to give some idea how these people occupy a neighborhood to the exclusion of white settlement.
