MORE HANDICAP BALL.

Frisco Again on the Short End.

A Shut-Out Averted by One Tally.

Hits Were Scarce on Both Sides, but Boston Easily Piled Up the Runs.

By a lucky chain of circumstances Frisco captured one miserable tally yesterday in another handicap game with those industrious young men from Boston. The handicap is still on, but it doesn't seem to worry the long-shots to any great extent. They have never been headed since the series opened, but that is no reason why the locals or Colonels should not check them in their mad career one of these days.

There was a fair-sized crowd on hand when the game opened, and the interest was sufficient to rivet the people to the spot until the performance closed. The hope of seeing Frisco duplicate its lone tally doubtless held the crowd down, but the tally was not forthcoming. Boston carried off another victory by a score of 8 to 1. But for M. Stanley's lucky drive in the sixth inning a shut-out would have greeted the efforts of the locals. Up to that period they had scored but one hit against Carsey. That one was a single in the third, also by Stanley, but it simply dispersed the gloom by paving the way to a double play. At every turn the best efforts of the struggling locals were squelched by the clever play on the other side. However, in the sixth, Stanley dropped a three-bagger between Hoy and McCarthy, which landed the only Frisco man of the game on third base. Piquigney followed with a hot one to Long, which he failed to hold, and thus was that one lone tally produced.

The game was fast in spite of its lop-sided result. Power's men behaved well, but were unfortunate in their hitting. Boston did not punish Knell hard. They secured a total of seven hits, but the runs would somehow pile up. The first one appeared in the opening round, when a base on balls, a steal and a sacrifice pushed Dummy Hoy across the home plate. In the third, with two men out, those lucky champions scored three runs, and did it with astonishing ease. With the bases full Davis dropped a measly two-bagger in right center. The happy McGucken nearly ruptured a blood vessel in going after the ball, but it fell short. Long and McCarthy scored, and Beckley went round from first to third on the hit. The ball was returned to Knell, who threw to third when Hulen was thinking of something else, and Mr. Beckley cantered home. All this happened before the locals had made up their minds to tally.

In the fifth for Frisco the celebrated Joshua Riley—who is back in the game—sought to create some diversion by stealing second base, but Messrs. Kittridge and Davis headed him off ten feet from the bag. Riley played second base in a very acceptable manner, as they say of actors who sustain minor roles. A couple of hits by Long and McCarthy gave Boston another run in the fifth, and in the eighth they completed their string with three more.

Beckley started with a single, Davis was safe on Riley's fumble, and Nash scored Beckley with a short fly to left. Kettridge singled and Davis came home. Carsey went out from pitcher to first and a passed ball let in the last run of the game. Boston and Oakland play to-day with Parrott and his machinery in the box. The score:

CHARITY BASEBALL.

How the Polyclinic and Children's Hospital Benefited.

The great game of baseball between the Bohemian and University Club teams held on Saturday, November 4th, was a handsome thing for the two charities in whose aid the game was played. The San Francisco Polyclinic and the Children's Hospital and Training School for Nurses have each received $809 70.

The total sum realized was $2201 20, and as the expenses amounted to $581 80 there remained just $1619 40 to be equally divided between the beneficiaries.

The ladies of the two charities desire to thank heartily the members of the two clubs, the merchants of San Francisco, the daily papers and all those who by their presence or in other way contributed to the success of the undertaking.

WASHINGTON EVENING SCHOOL

Exercises Closing the Work of the Year Given by the Pupils.

The year's work was closed with an interesting programme at the Washington Evening School on Friday evening. The programme included vocal and instrumental music and recitations, and concluded with an address by the principal, Miss P. M. Nolan.

The pupils participating in the exercises were: Miss Lendehol, Eddie Watts, Emile Armand, Emily Murat, Lily Watts, Anita Harrison, Bernard Gleason, Hattie Hawkins, William Kells, Alfred Berryessa, Thomas Murtha, Walter Jackson, Alphonse Moranmont, Dora Hill, Jules Guiot, Anna Shea, Hattie Ingells, Mamie McNally, Mary Martinez, Bridiga Sotto, Louise Goetz, Fabian Hildebrandt, Theresa O'Farrell, Eva Revers, Willie Ledden, Joseph Freitas, Mary Woodman, Jennie Mullin and Benjamin Jacobs.

Rattan Workers Entertain.

The Rattan Workers' Union held a reception last evening at St. George's Hall. Attorney Burnett G. Haskell made an address in which he congratulated the order upon never having ordered its members to strike. Purchasers of demijohns were urged to encourage home industries in preference to foreign manufactures. Music and dancing constituted the other features.

AFTER a night with the boys. Yours for a clear head—Bromo-Seltzer.
