SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1892. 3

COUNTING THE VOTE.

Some Features of the New Law.

Canvass Begins When the Polls Close.

The Task Must Be Continued Without Cessation Until Completed.

The complicated and badly constructed election law was elucidated all over the city, and now an expression on every hand on the widely proclaimed measure. The Chronicle has heard about all it can stand, the usual day of destruction proposition is exercising that quality on them, while the steady-going average man looks upon them with alarm.

The people are, however, encountering experiences in the new law, but they fearlessly insist on what the Chronicle was right in opposing the adoption of when and in. The interesting section in this case that No one out of the vote will be called for box of voting. [illegible] Section [illegible] Section [illegible] Section
