preached from First Corinthians, thirteenth chapter, twelfth verse, "For now we see through a glass darkly.'

The speaker said if there was a future state, another world, it was natural and proper to discuss our relations to that state or world and to each other there.

He then gave some reasons for the heavenly recognition and personal fellow-ship in the next world. Relative to the relationship there, the speaker said there was nothing earthy or sensual in it. There were no births or deaths, no husbands and no wives in an earthly sense. All conditions which could create jealousy or envy or strife must end here. He declared that love for parents, children, brothers, sisters or friends would continue in an intensified form.

After the sermon Brown's friends gathered around their ailing idol, offering sympathy and support. Dr. Goodwin passed among them practically unobserved. When the hand-shaking was at its very height Captain Jennings, one of Brown's followers, handed around a scurrilous pamphlet addressed to the members of the First Congregational Church and signed by "A Member." Later Captain Jennings admitted that he was the author of the sheet, and that Dr. Brown was in no sense responsible for its birth. Captain Jen-nings' effort is in part as follows:

We are indebted to the coarseness of the council in holding an open session without any warrant therefor in the New Testament. If we are forbidden to expose needlessly the infirmities of an individual, how much more those of a community of the church of Christ. The plea was that justice might be done. Did they draw inspiration from the lobby that came not to see justice done? but to see a minister disgraced? The effect was to hinder the course of justice, for its friends were never so aggressive as its enemies. It hurt the feelings of those of all denominations and others that are friendly to religion, and furnished amusement and scorn for its enemies. Whatever suffering they have caused they will also respin this short life.

our Lord will resent such an infliction on the tender sensibilities of his friends as unto himself. The prohibition is in the spirit of the New Testament and the apostles affirm it is as far as possible between brethren in secular matters. If it should cause the religious world at large to put its face against the practice, some good will have been accomplished. It also developed incompetence in arraying members of the same church one against the other as witnesses in the presence of both factions, producing feuds not possible to allay. The result is a pastor with shattered health and a church nearly equally divided in two factions. This is well, since the quality of their principles and lines of their methods are so strongly marked. The victors bowing to the mandate of the Bay Conference and following a leader who has created disunion and sorrow wherever she has made a permanent abode. Accepting in behalf of her followers without a word of protest the vilest assistance brought to her aid with whom creeds are obstructions and suspicion is belief. this audience was the largest that has attended the local church in a long time.

It is very likely that the young man will, as a result of the annual meeting of the church, to be held to morrow night, be called to the pulpit he occupied yesterday. ers on Puget Sound up to a few months ago, when she came to this port. On her way thither she broke down and fell into the hands of the Philistines, or rather, the Southern Pacific, who towed her out of the vasty deep. Then Mr. Huntington, with characteristic good humor and good judgment, claimed the unfortunate craft as a generous reward for his disinterested humanity.

The salvage suit is pending, the Monticello is running between this City and Vallejo, and the Herald is, night and day, camping on her trail. The two boats dock at the same slip, near the foot of Mission street, and every time the railroad steamer lumbers into her landing the officers of the Sound craft tremble. It would be so easy to crush the little passenger steamer as she lies at her moorings. A slight error with the helm and the opposition line to Vallejo and Benicia would be under the bay. Adding to this constant menace is the fact that the Herald docks outside of the Monticello and manages to take up much of the channel in the entrance to the slip.

"I have complained to the Southern Pacific officials and to the Harbor Commissioners," said Captain Hatch, owner of the Monticello, yesterday, "that the Herald is permitted to swing with slack towlines far out into the slip. Sometimes only by the utmost caution can we get by that boat and reach our landing. Even now one can see a hole in the side of the Monticello where the planking is mashed. We struck the Herald yesterday as we were trying to get around her stern. There'll be a big smash-up in this slip. I have more trouble, trying to avoid the Herald, than with all the other boats on the bay."

Yesterday morning the Herald found a

Yesterday morning the Herald found a

sion district with what they are very anxious to have, and that is a park of dimensions commensurate with the needs of the residents of that section of the "The people who live in the Mission district want a park," said President Austin yesrerday, "and the Commissioners think they ought to have it. They have nothing but a small square, a very small one at that, Garfield Square, I believe it is called, while the people north of Market street have Golden Gate Park, Buena Vista Park, the Mountain Lake Park and the Presidio, to say nothing of Washington quare, Union Square, Jefferson Square, Hamilton Square and others. "In the next fiscal year the Commissioners will ask for an appropriation for the improvement of Buena Vista Park. This is a tract of thirty-six acres, and its only value for a public park is its height and the grand view to be obtained from the summit, and if improved it would not be visited by the very young or by the aged on account of the heavy climb. My idea is that the City, through the Commissioners, should be empowered by the Legislature to dispose of a portion of this tract of

"What improvements do we contemplate? At present only the laying out of roads and walks. But, as I was saying, a portion of that park should be sold. It is too close to Golden Gate Park to make it popular. Say that twenty-five acres in the center be reserved and the remainder sold. The price that the land would bring, for it is a most magnificent site for residences, would be sufficient to allow the Commissome site in the Mission. It has been suggested that the two blocks that were used for Jewish cemeteries would answer the purpose, but I do not think so. The peo-ple who have homes in that district, and there are many of them, certainly ought to have a park nearer than Golden Gate Park. "The height of Buena Vista Park is 510 feet, and it could be made a capital site for a reservoir if at any time the City should own its own waterworks. A substantial ornamental structure could be erected there and on top of it an observatory could be built. If not, then an observatory alone might be erected on the reservoir site. As a popular park it is not desirable on account of the lack of water. All the water would have to be pumped up and that would be a very heavy expense.

"Some years ago the Spring Valley Water Company wanted to build a reservoir on Buena Vista Park and we were willing to allow it to do so with this proviso that it should furnish water to Gold en Gate Park through a two-inch pipe, but the company thought that was too much to pay for the privilege, so the project fell through."

On the subject of appropriations for the next fiscal year Mr. Austin said: "We do not know what the Supervisors will allow us, but we shall make a demand for sufficient to enable us to carry on the work in Golden Gate Park. We shall ask for money to build the band-stand in the new grand court; money with which to light up the park, for people demand it and say they must have it, money for the im-provement of Buena Vista Park; money to enable us to plant trees on the west side of the ocean boulevard to serve as a windbreak and prevent the sands from the ocean being blown onto the drive and money to build the monumental bridge over the grand tunnel that has been con-

park, but this I do know, I have begged for money to carry out improvements that are needed, but I will beg no more. The Commissioners will show what they require, will depend upon the generosity of the Supervisors, and make the best use possible of what they will be allowed. ducks that congregate yearly on Stow Lake," said Superintendent McLaren. "There were two in particular," he continued, "two red-headed fellows that were lame, so lame that they could hardly waddle, and their wings were broken. Well, when the time came for the ducks to migrate they all went except those two red-heads.

"They looked rather lonely—these two poor little beggars—among the swans and the mudhens. Well, one afternoon we were astonished to see an unusual number of ducks on the lake at a time when they ought to have been somewhere else, but we were more a stonished the next morning to note that they had disappeared. Not only were they gone, but the lame red-headed ducks had also disappeared.

lame red-headed ducks had also disappeared.

"A search was made, but they could not be found, and after several days we concluded that they went the same time the visiting ducks left. Now, it is a well-known fact that a duck with a broken wing cannot fly, and it was a matter of mystery to me how the beggars got away, and after thinking the matter over for several days I came to the conclusion that they were carried away by the visitors.

"Of course that is only conjecture, and I can only think that those visiting ducks came back for the express purpose of removing their injured companions, and that they did it, but how they did it is what puzzles me."

Students of the Occult Philosophy Make No Distinction Between Male and Female.

Dr. Allen Griffith, Pacific Coast lecturer of the Theosophical Society in America, was asked yesterday whether in his opinion the teachings of theosophy were opposed in any way to woman's suffrage—statements to that effect having already been made.

Dr. Jerome A. Anderson, in an interview in THE CALL of Saturday, declared that the statements referred to were entirely erroneous; that the society had no dogma whatever concerning the question of woman's voting, but that its entire philosophy, resting upon absolute justice, recognized the injustice of taxing and gov erning any sane person deprived by law of voting, and that as in the nature of things all souls were entirely sexless, therefore theosophy regarded man and woman as absolute equals.

In the main Dr. Griffiths agrees with these conclusions, and holds that theosophy cannot be in any way opposed to the equal suffrage movement. In reply to the question put to him Dr. Griffith said: There appears to be considerable misconcep-tion current as to theosophical teachings upon sex and the relations, past and present, existing between man and woman. Now the Theosophical Society has no creed, dogma or belief upon any subject whatever, but is simply a body of students searching for more light upon all problems of life and human existence.

Theosophy is only another name for knowledge of the operation of law, of the finer torces of nature, of the relation of the mind of man to the mind of Deity, and of the relation of man to man. Hence the theosophist is a truth-seeker, and as truth is universal, he is concerned with all problems of human thought

Attraction and repulsion, heat and cold, up and down, positive and negative, intellect and intuition, masculine and feminine, are some of them, and from their action and interaction results the universe and its contents. Intellect and intuition symbolize the male and female characteristics. Intellect concerns itself with the external aspect of things. It gathers data and statistics about things, but does not penetrate to the heart and know the soul re-siding in all forms. Intuition transcends the trammels of matter, plunges out into unknown realms and returns laden with knowledge not otherwise attainable. Intellect and intuition, masculine and feminine, are but the dual aspects of the soul. The Soul, the Thinker, is flesta in this City some time next spring and a meeting to consider ways and means is to be held this evening at the Baldwin

Hotel.

John Bell, who was prominently connected with the fiesta at Sarta Barbara, will be at the meeting. In speaking of the affair he said:

"Santa Barbara was the first city to start fiestas in this State. It proved a success, and indicated a line that other cities could follow for the good of the State. As a matter of fact there is so much good to be shown in this State that I think it would be advisable for all the counties and the cities where fiestas have been held to join in one grand reunion, regardless of sectional pride, in San Francisco, the metropolis of the State."

Manager Kirkpatrick of the Palace, Major Hooper of the Occidental, and the executives at the other hotels of the City, are hand and rlove with the proposition presented by Mr. Baldwin. If the idea meets with the approval of the public these gentlemen propose to make such rates that there will be no drawback in that respect.
