YOUNG AMERICA FROM STOCKTON .- A citizen of Stockton who visited this city last week, after being here a few days, sent for his son, a boy six years old. The returning Stockton boat brought down the youthful traveler in charge of one of its officers. After inspecting the curiosities of the public gardens and other places of amusement in company with his father, he started out on his own account. On reaching the fire-works manufactory, young Stockton was pleased with the assortment and seemed inclined to buy out the establishment. seemed inclined to tuy out the establishment. He proposed to purchase, and tendered two dimes in payment. The proprietor inquired his name, when the boy responded, "What do you want my name for when I have the money to pay cash down?" The next adventure of the young traveler was a trip to Santa Clara on his own account. He took passage in the cars alone, and was taken in charge at Santa Clara by parties who learned his name and telegraphed up to his anxious father that his child was in safe hands. He was brought back to the city the next day by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express and started for Stockton with his father by the next boat.

Run Oven.-Yesterday, about two o'clock, as Mrs. Revalk and her child were alighting from the cars, at the corner of Montgomery and Commercial streets, an accident occurred. which, for a moment, cast a thrill of horror over all present. The little boy, on alighting, went a few feet from the car, unnoticed by his mother, just as a gentleman with a span of horses and a buggy drove by. The gentleman was not observing what was passing in front of him and hefore to was avera of it the horses. him, and before he was aware of it the horses over it. With a scream that was heard far above the din of wheels, the mother sprang forward and clasped her darling to her bosom, and then (woman-like), when no more was to be accomplished, fainted away. THE CUSTOM-HOUSE LEASE.

The Contract Valid and lu Full Force and Effect-Williams and Buckbee Have the Ground for Twenty Years -The West Half of the Block Only Included - The Contract Approved by two Senators and two Congress-the contract in some manner was set aside by United States District Attorney Evarts. From want of specific information we were led into several important errors, which are corrected by advices received from Washing-ton yesterday. The lease includes only the west half of the Custom-house block. This portion of the ground contains no build-ings except the one-story shanties on Wash-ington street and those extending north-on Sansome and on the entrance to the Post Office. The Government will remain in possession of the Custom-house and Post Office, as at present. The principal "party of the the second part" is Henry F. Williams, with Buckbee as a "running mate," as fast trotters are sometimes hernessed alongside of runners to develope their best speed. The terms of the lease are the same as stated before, $1,000 per work for knowledge. per month for twenty years. There seems to have been no effort made by Evarts to invalidate the contract; or, if there was, the effort was unsuccessful. The proposition to lease these grounds to Williams and Buckbee was approved and indorsed as an advantageous one to the Government by Senators Cole and Casiserly and Congressmen Axtell and Johnson. The presumption is that the old building now on the ground will soon be torn down and a new block of buildings erected thereon.

THE STATE PRISON. San Quentin and Its Inmates-Improvements and General Appearance. On Saturday last we visited the State Prison, and must confess that we were agreeably surprised at not only its appearance but the good order and discipline which prevails among those seven hundred outlaws. We found no half-starved or ill-treated prisoners there, but, on the contrary, they all say that they have an abundance of food, such as it is, and they have no complaints to make of the treatment they receive at the hands of the

Is surrounded by a high brick wall inclosing some five acres, in which are situated three prison-houses, a large work-shop, hospital, wash-house, dining-room for the prisoners, and a building in which the Captain of the Yard has an office, the top story of which is occupied by an office, the top story of which is occupied by the female convicts. On the ground floor of his
is also to be seen the library of the institution, well supplied with books, a barber-shop, and in front of the building is a cultivated gardenspot planted with flowers, shrubbery and strawberry vines. The whole interior presents a green and but for the grim and terrible looking dungeon walls a very pleasing appearance. One could hardly realize that they were really in a prison were it not for the clanging of iron doors, the creaking of heavy locks and bolts as they close in upon those seven hundred human beings, n upon those seven hundred human beings, whose suppressed murmurings sound strangel whose suppressed marmurings sound strangery upon the ear of a free man. In what is called the "New Prison South" there are 198 cells, only 99 of which are occupied. It is not considered a very safe building. In the middle prison there are the same number of cells and 195 of them compiled. In the old wife, 195 of them occupied. In the old prison-there are only 48 cells, all of them full. The old jail is now used as an hospital and dining room. Only thirteen invalids are now confined to their cots. Many of the men are sick with the munips, but are able to move shout. One Indian reigner died there vector. are sick with the mumps, but are able to move about. One Indian prisoner died there yesterday of consumption. South of this building and west of the other prisons is laid the foundations of a massive brick structure; intended for a workshop, 254 feet long and 05 feet wide, which is to be elevated four stories high, with walls twenty inches thick, and buttresses two by three every twelve feet all along the sides of the building. A. A. Bennett has charge of the construction of it, and will probably have it ready for use in a month. A large force of men have been employed in excavating where the foundation is laid. It is intended to accommodate all the different labor departments in this new building. The old one is much too small, and, besides that, the earthquake injured it considerably. jured it considerably.

CONVICT LABOR AND CONTRACTORS. The principal business of the prison is now that of harness and saddle manufacturing. The men are let to Stone & Hayden, who keep in constant employment about one hundred and fifty convicts, and as good work as can be and fifty convicts, and as good work as can be found in any shop is turned out by these men, doomed to a period of servitude as galling as that of African slavery. George Kimball has the wagon department and works about the same number of men as Stone & Hayden employs. On the first of the month William Hunter commences operations with one hundred and twenty-five brickmakers. He is furnished that number of men at forty cents each per day. Last year that force of men turned out about seven million of bricks for the State. They are as good as any bricks that can be They are as good as any bricks that can be made and are being used in constructing the new workshop. A large yard has been laid out down by the water's edge, west of the prison, where they intend to manufacture a large quantity of bricks. On the side hill, above the yard, has been built a huge reservoir which contains plenty of freeh water for voir, which contains plenty of fresh water for voir, which contains plenty of fresh water for working the clay. The contractor expects to realize a good thing by this speculation. The keepers say that the State did not make much by their operations last year. The cooper department is under a contract to Clark & Co. They turn out good and substantial largely treats from contract to the contract barrels twenty-five cents cheaper than they can be bought for at any place else.

PARDONED PRISONERS. Since the present administration came into power, Governor Haight has pardoned twentynine felons. Eight of them were for murder. two for manslaughter, three for robbery, eleven for grand larceny, four for forgery and one for for grand larceny, four for forgery and one for rape. Of this number two were imprisoned for life, one for thirty years, one for twenty years, two for twenty-one years, two for fifteen years, one for some for four for four years, one for seven years, one for siz years, one for four and a half years and three for four years. There are a large number who look anxiously for a pardon from the Governor. They most all seem to think that they have been there long enough. In our next article we will probably give a detailed account of the customs, occupations and labits of the prisoners, their appearance and by two Senntors and two Congressmen from California.

We stated last week that Secretary McCulloch had, on the 3d of March, entered into a contract with J. R. Buckbee of Plumas county to lease the Custom-house property in this city for $1,000 per month for twenty years, and that

EASTER SPORTS.

At the Recreation Grounds on Sunday last there was a large attendance; the games of base ball, cricket and foot ball were well contested and afforded considerable amusement. Among the races was a water race, where each contestant carried a bucket of water on his head, the one who held the most of his water to be declared winner, and the sack race, where only one man out of four who entered came through, created the most uproatious mirth. The chief interest, however, centered in the steeple chase—a race three time around the track, leaping three hurdles, the last one of which was planted on the brink of a ditch ten fect wide, filled with water. Two grays and a bay entered for the race. On the trial round, one of the grays fell, in leaping the ditch, rolling over its rider, without doing any serious damage to man or beast. They then started for the first round, clearing everything handsomely. On the second round, which was rode with ease by all, thoy cleared overything, until they came to the last leap of hurdle and ditch, when down went the gallant bay, carrying his rider with him, and for a moment apparently crushing him beneath his weight. The rider was soon on his feet, however, and from thence head, the one who held the most of his water was soon on his feet, however, and from thence to the back of the bay. On the third and last time around the course, the bay came home safe, but the little gray, who had fallen on the first trial, fell in clearing the ditch, landing herself and rider in the water, without doing addition to the numerous other attractions, the music discoursed by the mammoth orches-tra was a most elegant and pleasing feature.

A Store Entered and Safe Opened and Robbed in the Daytime-The Burg. lar Captured with over $400 in his Pockets-He Surrenders the Money and Offers to Prove Good Character. Between 11 and 12 o'clock on Sunday forenoon Mr. Peck, of the firm of Wellman, Peck ter of business. He unlocked the front door and on stepping in met a genteel looking man, who quietly advanced toward the door. One of the gas-burners was lit and Mr. Peck supposed the gas-burners was lit and Mr. Peck supposed that the book-keeper was in the office, as he sometimes called on Sundays, and that the stranger was a friend of his. On stepping to the office door, however, he could see no one and observed evidences of disorder which aroused his suspicions. He stepped quickly to the street and hailed the stranger, who was just turning down Clay street. Instead of returning to explain, the stranger started on a full run toward Battery street, and Peck gave chase. A foot race of a single block established the fact that Peck was the best runner under the circumstances then existing. The fugitive was collared and taken back to the store. On entering the office, Peck asked The fugitive was collared and taken back to the store. On entering the office, Peck asked him what he had been doing and was informed that he had been in the safe. Peck then, for the first time, took a survey of the situation and found the safe door open, and discovered that, aside from the money carried off, a considerable portion of silver had been laid out on the desk, possibly in anticipation of a second visit. At Peck's suggestion the prisoner began to disgorge, and took out roll after roll of silver, first from one pocket and then from another, until the sum total amounted to $11 S0. This amount of silver weighs over twenty-five pounds, and it was no amounted to $111 SU. This amount of silver weighs over twenty-five pounds, and it was no matter of surprise that a man handicapped with this weight could not make creditable time in a foot race. When the stolen money was delivered up the man gave his name as George A. H. Bartlett, said he was respectably connected, and desired Peck to examine certain recompositions and independents see the adolescent the said of the said o amendations and indorsements as to good char-acter which he had brought with him from responsible merchants of New York, Peck was taken by surprise by this proposition; but feeling unwilling to go to trial without a law-yer, for fear of losing his case, he replied that the credentials of good character. feeling unwilling to go to trial without a lawyer, for fear of losing his case, he replied that the credentials of good character could be given to the police. Bartlett was taken to the station-house and was there more thoroughly searched. Some $52 additional, chiefly in gold, was found in his possession, making the total amount recovered, $463 80. He had brought letters from New York, addressed to Russell, Erwin & Co., hardware manufacturers, and, so far as the members of that firm knew, bore a good reputation. Bartlett came to this city a few months ago, and has been boarding at the Russ House. The proprietors of the store feel uncertain as to how Bartlett gained access to it, as there was no place open, front or rear, except the door which Peck unlocked. Mr.

Wellman had been at the store an hour or two before, and, leaving the front door ajar, ho stepped up stairs for a few moments. Bartlett, in all probability, stepped in at that time and secreted himself. After the arrest it was found that Bartlett wore a hat which had been found that Bartlett wore a hat which had been stolen from a store which had been robbed a few days before. Yesterday Mr. Peck was in-formed that Bartlett spent some time in a saloon in the vicinity, which commanded a view of their front door. He took a drink or two, and said he had no money at that time to pay with, but that he expected to be in funds in an hour or two, when he would settle the bill.

A. "GRAYBACK" WASHED ON SHORE, Some time during Saturday night a member of the whale family, known as the "grayback," was washed ashore near the point where the wreck of the bark Brignardello now reposes. This specimen of the sea monster measures twenty-seven feet in length and eight feet in diameter. It is a female, far advanced in pregnancy, which had doubtless sought these shoal waters for the purpose of bringing forth its young. In this condition she was caught by the tide and landed. To denominate this fish what it has tanded. To denominate this his what it has been called, a whale, is simply absurd. That it belongs to that species, no one will deny; but as to its belonging to the gonus whale which so many seek as an article of commerce, is simply a stretch of the imagination, which is simply a stretch of the imagination, which all are allowed to indulge in. The regular whaleman no more notices these denizens of the deep than he does the sardines which play around the prow of his vessel. To California belongs the honor of having inaugurated a system of fishery for this monster of the deep. At Monterey, and other points on the coast, this species of fish are hunted with zest and profit. Banks sail out from the shore and at this species of ush are nunted with zest and profit. Boats sail out from the shore and attack them, with favorable results. Yet no sensible whalemen ever venture to attack a female when in the presence of her offspring, for a school, or herd, will rush to the rescue of a for a school, or herd, will rush to the rescue of a female in distress, or at the plaintive call of the young. They are, as it were, one family, and woe to the luckless wight who throws his harpoon into a defenseless "calf;" the whole "school" is on him immediately, and he has luck on his side who can take a boat out of that school in safety. Yet not for this peculiarity are the "graybacks" left by the legitimate whalemen. Their average yield of oil is only about ten barrels, and no ship will lower its boats for men. Their average yield of oil is only about ten barrels, and no ship will lower its boats for that alone. They are therefore classed as "foul blows," which a whaleman does not notice unless they are sporting so close to his ship as to render the dropping of a harpoon into one of their bodies but as child's play. The monster washed ashere at the Cliff House would but provoke a smile from the regular whaleman at sea. This fish, though probably yielding thirty barrels of oil, would never be called a whale in the log-book of a ship which is prepared to capture those monsters of the deep in their ocean home. As yet no one has made preparations to secure the oil which may be extracted from the carcass of this monster, whose unwieldy bulk is reposing on the sands of the beach in front of the Seal Rock House. The body of this huge fish is covered with hieroglyphics, which, deciphered, teil us of the many who have visited it. Among these we noticed one significant inscription, probably from a whaleman, "Flukes only four feet long, body 27; this cannot be a whale, for no such dimensions were ever noticed in a member of the family." dimensions were ever noticed in a member of A Child Run Over by a Street-Car and Killed.

At about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, another terrible accident occurred on the Market-street Railroad, near Seventh street. As car No. 1 was passing, a boy named Robert Emmet Dugan was knocked down, run over and instantly killed. Two men, or boys, had been engaged in a velocipede race, and a crowd of boys and children had collected together to witness the performance. The exercise had terminated and the children were dispersing to their homes. The statement of the driver is, that the first he saw to attract his attention was the child immediately in front. He stopped the car as soon as possible, but the child was knocked down by one of the horses and the wheels of the car passed over it, crushing the head in a frightful manner, and also crushing one hand. The child died immediately. It was picked up and taken to the residence of the parents, in the vicinity. The Coroner will hold an inquest over the remains this evening. The car driver, James Talford, was arrested by officer Garrity, and will be held until the Coroner's jury investigate the question of culpable carelessness. and the wheels of the car passed over it, crush

EASTER SUNDAY. Church Services and Sunday-School Festivals.

Easter Sunday was observed appropriately by the churches of the city generally. At the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires the great work of Mercadante's was rendered in the most brilliant manner by the members of the choir of the church assisted by Miss Emelie Melville, Miss Chevalier, Mrs. Brown and Mons. Bellanger—the whole under the direction of Signor G. Mancust. Madame Burton, one of the most prominent and brilliant members of the most prominent and brilliant members of French society in the city, sang with rare sweetness and purity of voice Vaccaj's "Ave Maria." Donizetti's "Ave Maria" was sung by M'lle. Tourney, Signor Mancusi and Mrs. Morel, with fine effect.

Grace Church was crowded at an early hour, as, in addition to the attraction of the ceremonies, the fact that a collection was to be taken up for the benefit of the Protestant Orphan Asylum tended to draw together all who were interested in the prosperity of that institution. The collection amounted to $900, $500 of that amount coming from one person.

At the Church of the Advent the rush was so great that many were compelled to leave without obtaining admission. After the morning service, communion service was held, and two hundred and thirty partook of the Holy Sacrament. The baptism of three infants concluded the ceremonics.

At Trinity Church the musical portion of the At Trinity Church the musical portion of the services was very impressive. The choir was strengthened by double the usual number of singers, and in addition to the organ a brass band was brought into requisition.

At St. Luke's Church, attractive music and an mpressive service by the Rector rewarded all present.

The Catholic churches were all densely crowded. At St. Mary's Church a grand Pontifical High Mass was celebrated, and Archbishop Alemany bestowed the Pontifical benediction.

There were Sunday School festivals at most of the churches. At Grace Church the children of the Protestant Orphan Asylum united with the scholars of the Sunday School. The singing of hymns, reading of Scripture and brief addresses constituted the exercises.

At Trinity Church the attendance of parents and visitors was large. Psalms and hymns were sung by the children. Rev. Mr. Birdsall and Rev. Mr. Wyatt delivered brief addresses. Doxology was sung by the whole congregation. The school of the Church of the Advent was ttended by about five hundred children. In addition to other exercises, Rev. Mr. Chapin and Rev. Mr. Lathrop delivered short addresses. The offerings of the children amounted

OAKLAND MATTERS.

Easter Sunday dawned upon Oakland through a canopy of murky clouds that seemed to prognosticate a day of gloom. But, at about 10 A.M., there was a sudden and noticeable change in the weather. The clouds dispersed and the sun beamed forth in full effulgence. and the sun beamed forth in full effulgence. From that hour the day was bright, balmy and glorious. At the Episcopal church (Rev. B. Ackerly rector) the Easter festival was celebrated in accordance with the traditions and usages of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The music provided for the occasion was of the most exquisite kind; the church was tastefully decorated with flowers; the attendance was unusually large, and the rites and service of the day were marked by the fine taste and esthetic character psculiar to the Protestant Episcopal Church. Episcopal Church.

The new Baptist church on Fourteenth street, near Market, was dedicated on Sunday. The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Charlton, of Sacramento. This church is the finest edifice of the kind in Oakland. The plans were drawn by Charles Bugbee, of Oakland, one of the most accomplished architects in the State. tects in the State.

On Sunday night two policemen discovered that the door of Raclifie's grocery, corner of Broadway and Eighth streets, had been tampered with. They entered the store and upon examination discovered a man stowed away behind a pile of boxes. The man was of course placed in the calaboose for safe keeping, and a charge of burglary was entered against him. The Society proposes to hold a celebration next June, and a meeting of those members residing in San Francisco, Oakland and vicinity will be held one week from next Wednesday evening, at the College of California.

Seward to deliver the oration on the occasion of the inauguration of the University of California. Of course the ex-Secretary will accept the invitation—paying his own expenses. The honor of delivering the oration will amply pay for the time and cost of the trip. Sacramento had a prize fight on Saturday.

Two young darkies were the contestants. Ten rounds were fought and a "draw" was declared. HOTEL ARRIVALS.
