PLEASING COSTUMES.

The Pretty Toilets of the Ladies Present.
The toilets of the ladies were exceptionally pretty, and in their combina-tions they formed a most pleasing ad dition to the picturesque appearance of the clubrooms. A few of the cos-tumes are described as follows: Miss Hinkle of l'etaluma was greatly

From the garden rail in front to the pretty retreat among the trees behind the ballroom the clubhouse was pleasure's kingdom. Vari-colored lanterns shed soft lights upon the facade of the building, forming a beautiful arch above the entrance way, and other similar decorations in various pretty forms enhanced the beauty of the home of the leaguers.

Miss Mankle of Petaluma was grently admired in her costume of Nile green creps which was cut decoiled. Mrs. E. F. Bowers wore a rich toilet of red slike to the collete which admirably set off her brunette type of beauty. Miss Mand Smith looked tovely in a tolet of white broaded slik. Mrs. William H. Most of them came early, knowing that an excellent programme would be pre-sented for their entertainment; but the few who missed the pleasure of hear-ing the splendid musical and literary selections enjoyed with a greater thrill the whirlings of the dance so as the better to redeem what enjoyment owe large parlors, where shortly after 8:30 o'clock Noah Brandt's orchestra struck the first bars of the opening overture and the "night" had begun.

A. H. Kayton rendered a violin solo, "Souvinair de Bellini Artot," in a manner which called forth much applause from the pleased audience, who, however, were soon hushed into new admiration by the admirable singing of a quartet consisting of Messrs. Blum, Snook, Stadtfeld and Neilson, who rendered "The Chapet" in an excellent manner. Something of a novelty in entertainment was then given by Benno Kayton, who whistled a solo in a way which made every young lady pucker her lips and make up her mind that she would devote an hour a day herself to the art.

Ugo Taito's tenor solo, "Salve Dimora" of Faust, was one of, the best Dinora" of Faust, was one of the best renditions this artist has had the pleasure to perform. He was in splendid voice, and the song was one of the most enjoyable of the evening. The hand of an artist had directed the decoration of the interior, which was pretty and homelake, without any of the garishness of ostentation. Pretty flowers showed their smiling faces from behind pictures and peeped over vases' lips, and made mantel tops resemble so many mounds on which Flora had heaped her treasures. Garlands of the always beautiful smilax depended from the chandeliers, trailing their cool and cheery looking vines over the heads of the audience, as it to add to the evening's pleasures by reminding the guests of the other enjoyments but so recently passed through among the summer woods. Tsang's scheme was to have the Chinese Six Companies appoint a commit-tee to confer with the Chinese Club of Portland and allow them to render a decision. Of course Tsang had his friends appointed on the committee, triends appointed on the committee, and expe-ted a report from Portland supporting his action and proclaiming Moy Bock Hang a fraud. The reply of the Portland club has never been made public until yesterday, when the Chincase merchants of the city issued a placard, which was posted throughout the Chinese quarter. It is this document which has caused all Chinatown to laugh in its sleeve, and which has to laugh in its sleeve, and which has sent the Consul-General in the deepest mourning. The Cuinsew Curs.

Liang Ting Tsang, the former Consul-General of China to this port, had another suit entered against him yesterday in the United States District Court for moneys which, it is alleged, he is unlawfully retaining in his possession. The plaintiff to the action is Ng Sheow Tan, a subject of the Emperor of China. The complaint sets forth that on September 1, 1889, the defendant was indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $339, which had been received by him for the benefit and use of the plaintiff. The demand was made for the money, but payment was refused. To his claim is added the assigned claims of Yee Lee & Co., Ng Yot Hong, Jam Kee, Kim Lee, Yet Fot & Co., Chong Dan, Wah Lee, Jim Kee and Quon Wah, amounting to $10,001 lo. As only $1335 of the entire amount has been paid, judgment in the sum of $10,001 lo is usked for, torether with costs of action.

To the Editor of the Chronicle—Siz: In the Eraminer of the 26th inst., certain statements were made relative to the Minister Tsul Kwok Yin and a member of his suite, which purported to have come from the Chinese merchants, As the Chinese merchants generally have not given expression to such sentiments, we wish to have it understood that we have had nothing to do to such sentiments, we wish to have it understood that we have had nothing to do with their publication. We entertain the most profound respect for his Excellency, officially and personally, and think it would ill become us to criticise his appointment. While he may not be able to speak Cantonese, it does not follow that we cannot communicate with him easily nor that it will make him less efficient as China's representative at Washington.

As to his private affairs, we disclaim any knowledge of them. As for the statements in regard to Mr. Teo, who may or may not be appointed Consul-General at this port, there is not the least truth in them except that he is a native of Auwhul. He has brought no faully over, so that the story of his "bringing over more wives than the laws of the country allow" is only a lightly sensational story.

August F. Collins, who is charged jointly with Thomas Couriz with the murder of Andreas Aagaard, a sailor, made a desperate attempt to escape yesterday noon. In company with a number of other prisoners, Collins had Definite arrangements will probably be made to-day to try-out Mr. Bauer, and meantime the professional pugilists are speculating as to whether the alleged Fresno contractor is not some big clever Eastern or foreign heavyweight who is traveling under an assumed name with a view of scooping in our local sports.

Joe Choynski has concluded not to retire until he whips Joe Bowers, and has therefore plediged himself to the Occidental Club to nght the Londoner at 165 pounds. The timber was badly decayed and it gave way, allowing a large mass of brick and mortar to fall to the floor. Half an hour later the corridor would have been crowded and there would have been crowded and the masonry fallen then. Supervisor Bush was at once notified and the courts took an early adjournment, so that the necessary repairs might be made. From all appearances the walls of the entire building are so disintegrated that they are in momentary danger of falling.

A SOCIETY DIVORCE.

The Montealegres' Short Wedded Life.

BOTH FILE COMPLAINTS.

The Wife Charges Extreme Craelty and Adultery, and

He Responds.

Another society divorce scandal pushed its head up out of the great mass of dull legal contests which kept Judge Hunt of the Superior Court busy for several hours yesterday. It made its presence known in the most formal nts presence known in the most forms and uninteresting manner imaginable, only attracting attention by its simplicity of procedure. The husband simply demurred to his wife's complaint, and as nobody interested in it was present it went over for a week.

Back of these proceedings there is an interesting story of a weddel life that W. G. Innes, a Philadelphia capitalist who had been on a pleasure trip about the State, staggered into the Palace Hotel about 3 o'clock Friday morning with his face covered with blood and his clothing torn and soiled. When he reached the office he sank its Carlos F. Montealegre, both of whom have been and are prominent in the unpresented for scients. Mr. Montealegre states are the control of the parties of the sank is carlos and are prominent in the unpresented for scients.
