HACKETT TO FIGHT CASE IN COURTS

Thomas Hackett, fireman who was discharged from service by Fire Chief Elliot Whitehead and ordered to report for duty today by the Civil Service Board, which reduced the penalty for insubordination to suspension for sixty days, was today denied permission to go to work in the department. He applied to Assistant Chief Sam Short, who referred him to the office of Commissioner Jackson. In the absence of the commissioner, Ben B. Jones, executive secretary, on instruction refused to place Hackett in his old position. It is probable that court proceedings will be taken by Hackett to settle the issue.

BUSHMAN AND BAYNE, MOVIE STARS, WEDDED

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 1.—Francis X. Bushman, movie star, and his co-star, Beverly Bayne, were married at New York Monday, Bushman admitted here today. The marriage quickly followed granting of a divorce to the first Mrs. Bushman at Towson, Md., last Thursday.

Bushman quietly discussed the marriage to Miss Bayne and regretted publicity in the matter, he said, until a statement made by his former wife was read to him.

"They might have waited until the ink was dry on the divorce papers," said the first Mrs. Bushman. "I should have obtained a divorce three years ago," was Bushman's reply to this.

U. S. HALTS WAR FUND COLLECTION

The government has halted the collection of funds, of which $4000 was raised at a golf tournament at the Claremont Country Club here, for the Drake Section Sanitaire, which was to have operated twenty-five ambulances for the Sixth French Army Corps, with which American troops are brigaded. More than $25,000 was raised in California for this fund by Mrs. William J. Gavin, woman golf champion, in a series of tournaments held at the request of Miss Ethel Langdon Drake, who is alleged to have been "promoting" the war charity.

The fund of $4000 raised in Oakland has not yet been sent East, and it is possible that it will be turned over to the Oakland Chapter of the American Red Cross, if the proper authorization can be obtained for such a course. Contributors to the fund have expressed the wish that this disposition shall be made of the money, since the government has disclosed the facts concerning the Drake Section Militaire. A meeting of the committee which assisted in holding the Country Club Golf tournament and raising the fund will probably be called to decide the question.

Mrs. Gavin, whose connection with the Drake Section Sanitaire is believed by the authorities to have been wholly innocent, is now in Los Angeles. The funds raised by her in Oakland, San Francisco, Del Monte and Los Angeles are said to be on their way East, to be deposited for the Drake fund, but payment of any checks drawn on this fund has been stopped by order of Assistant District Attorney Swann of New York.

CLOSELY QUESTIONED

Miss Drake, whose home is in Boston, was closely questioned by Assistant District Attorney Kilroe in New York last night when she arrived at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. It was said that she had agreed to turn over $14,000, deposited in a Detroit bank, to the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand.

The Drake Section Sanitaire, purported to be a war charity, and when the campaign for funds was launched Miss Drake announced that she had already sent twenty-five ambulances to France, and was prepared to devote her private fortune of $100,000 to the cause. The authorities became interested in the Drake Section when it was learned from the French government that no ambulances had been received.

Word that the organization was under investigation caused the sudden disbanding of the group of young women of social prominence, daughters of wealthy families in Chicago, New York, Detroit and other cities, who had been accepted as ambulance drivers for the Drake Section, and who were in training in a camp at Bayside, Long Island. Miss Virginia K. Chandler, of New York, captain of the camp, said that she and eighteen others in the camp had resigned.

TRAINING FEE

Each of the score of young women ambulance drivers is said to have been paying from $75 to $175 a month for training in the camp. Miss Drake last night turned over to the authorities $900 worth of diamonds which had been given her by Miss Gladys Rhoades of Omaha, Neb., as a guarantee that her camp fees would be paid.

It was recalled here by officials of the Claremont Country Club that Mrs. Gavin had come here from Denver, where she had been induced to take part in a series of golf tournaments for the Drake ambulance fund. She was originally booked on a western golf tour by the Western Golf Association. Mrs. Gavin brought with her copies of letters given her by Miss Drake, which she believed to have been given Miss Drake by General Petain and other French military executives.

The funds raised by Mrs. Gavin for the Drake fund in California came from tourneys, the first of which was played July 16 at the Claremont Club where $4000 was raised; the second at the San Francisco Golf and Country Club, where almost $10,000 was raised; at Del Monte, $1500; and at Los Angeles $8000. Mrs. Gavin also played at Seattle and Tacoma.

AGED MAN IS ARRESTED FOR SEDITION

Ashbury Harpending, 79 years of age, living at 2607 Fruitvale avenue, appeared before Police Judge Mortimer Smith this morning to answer to a charge of uttering seditious language in violation of the Jackson ordinance. He was arrested yesterday on complaint of Mrs. Lettie Florensen of 2581 Fruitvale avenue, who accused him of lauding the Germans and making derogatory remarks about President Wilson.

Harpending asked for continuance of the case until tomorrow, after admitting to Judge Smith this he had "said some things for which he is sorry." He said that he and his ancestry have always been loyal Americans. The case was continued.

Cliff House Sings Its Swan-Song
Historical Landmark Is in Discard

Will San Francisco's famous Cliff House become a House of a Thousand Ghosts, or will it experience a renaissance and again take its peculiar place in the Bohemian life of the community, is a question patrons of the world-famous resort are asking today.

Last night the lights went out, and there appears to be something in the hearts of its devotees akin to genuine sorrow.

Manager John Farley will not speak of it. "All the old-timers are too sad to talk," he said. "Don't ask me to say anything, for so far as I know, the last chapter of its famous history is ended. The name of the Cliff House evokes more memories than any other American landmark, not excepting the old Absinthe House of New Orleans."

Does the rendezvous of the seekers of conviviality belong to an era that is gone? Does the order refusing it the privilege of selling liquors to its guests effectually obliterate it except as a memory, and will bats take refuge there and weird, haunting sounds make of it a place to shun? Or will it come to life again and attain popularity greater than ever before when some manager conceives a form of entertainment that does not appear to require for its acceptance the stimulus that comes from out the flowing bowl?

Two nights ago the windows were ablaze with lights, syncopated strains modulated harmoniously with the song of the splashing surf, cabaret entertainers gyrated through the measures of song, and glasses tinkled and men and women danced and laughed and appeared to be happy.

Last night the windows were dark and there was an air of mystery behind the drawn blinds, the jazz was hushed and there was only the endless song of the sea. Somewhere below the terrace a dark-skinned attendant of a fruit stand tinkled the strings of a mandolin and the loneliness of it caused a shiver to race down the spine of the two or three people who stood about as if lost in a maze of dark passages.

Leaning against a khaki-clad artillery private from Fort Winfield Scott was a demure girl, and frightened she appeared. They stood alone, solitary upon the veranda, in the half light that came from the moon. An automobile stole up with seeming caution, there was low spoken conversation, and then it hurried away as if from something that had caused them fright. And the night waxed old and the sun came again. But there was no sign of life. And there will be other nights, and they will not bring back the revel.

Unless some one can think of something that will give people pleasure without the stimulus of wine, the Cliff House has become a memory.

Soldier Husband Acts as Detective

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—R. E. Seip of Marbury, Texas, who enlisted at the beginning of the war, arrived here last night on a furlough and arrested Roy Deniston, a hotel clerk, and charged him with a violation of the Mann act.

According to Seip his wife left her home in Oklahoma City with Deniston after Deniston had told his local draft board he was coming to an Oakland shipyard to obtain employment and had dazzled Mrs. Seip with stories of the huge salaries which were paid to workmen here. The case is under investigation by the federal authorities.
