

THE AUTHOR OF "A CONTENTED WOMAN."

Charles G. Hoyt and Mrs. Hoyt Arrive.

A VERY BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

THEY TALK OF THE PLAY AND THE TOWN.

A VISIT TO THE CHURCH—SOME EXPLANATIONS AS TO THE HANDS OF DENVER WOMEN.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hoyt, the man who wrote "A Contented Woman" and the woman who makes her a living, breathing reality, arrived in San Francisco yesterday morning.

The first thing they did was to take a drive, and their destination was the Old House. It is Mrs. Hoyt's first visit to California, and she wanted to see the "Old House" where she had been born.

"Why didn't they replace the picturesque one-story structure?" he said. "This new building looks like Long Branch or Narragansett Pier, or any other hackneyed place."

Mrs. Hoyt, whose stage name is Carline Miskel Hoyt, is quite as beautiful as her pictures, which is saying a great deal. She was a Kentucky girl, and she speaks with the sweet accent of the South.

"The playwright winced, while the member of the Republican Legislature and the husband of the pretty actress smiled."

"Will, my dear, that is very much the method God pursued in regard to Adam, and he was quite successful," he answered meekly.

Mrs. Hoyt made a little more. "The scene of 'A Contented Woman' is laid in Denver, and the play is a satire on the woman's rights."

"The greatest surprise to me," he said, "was the way 'A Contented Woman' was received in Denver. Usually the town where a play is laid will have none of it."

"Now in our house," said Mr. Hoyt, "I lay my cigar down in the drawing-room, generally," interpolated his wife.

Both laughed as though they, at least, had solved the suffrage problem.

STONE TRADES OFFICES.

Resigns as School Director to Become Deputy Superintendent.

Late on Friday afternoon C. B. Stone filed his resignation as School Director with the clerk of the Board of Education.

Stone was the only opponent of Babcock's selection as the result of a combination, and it is believed that Stone's appointment was one of the considerations.

BLOW AT GAME PRESERVES.

DECISION UNDER THE NEW LAW AT SAN PABLO.

A Jury Decides That Hunting on the Marshes Is Not an Act of Trespass.

A suit which tests the rights of holders of game preserves was decided before a Justice of the Peace at San Pablo yesterday.

The plaintiff is a woman who has a preserve on the marshes which lie between the old channel of San Pablo creek and the San Pablo Potrero.

The defendant is a man who has a preserve on the marshes which lie between the old channel of San Pablo creek and the San Pablo Potrero.

The action was for trespass, which contained very few elements of novelty.

The Sportsmen's Protective Association took a great interest in the case, as it has contended that Jones' action was within the law.

The Federal Suit Against Him Has Been Dismissed.

D'Arcy M. Cashin, who has for many years been under indictment for complicity in the celebrated Liebes and Neuberger-Kelso frauds on the Custom-house, has been set free.

FRESHMAN TRIED THE GAME.

KAARSBERG CARRIED OFF THE HONORS.

Yellow Chrysanthemums Waved Triumphant at the Football Game.

The California freshmen succeeded in administering the most ignominious defeat to their Stanford friends yesterday afternoon that was ever seen in any football game in this city.

Any one who knew anything about football or imagined he did, foretold unspeakable disgrace to the Berkeley team, and great was the surprise when California began to work the ball, not slowly, but with lightning-stroke rapidity.

Overback kicked for Stanford and made thirty-five yards, but Kaarsberg found the ball and smashed his way through center for five yards.

Stanford kicked the ball to the ten-yard line, but Kaarsberg ran back with it twenty yards.

FIERY LAWYERS AT WAR IN COURT.

Philbrook Stirrs Hayne's Blood.

THREATS AND HOT WORDS.

A SPEECH THAT DISTURBED THE PEACE.

Hayne and Others Prevent a Fight in a Federal Courtroom.

The fiery strain of the immortal Hayne, who provoked Daniel Webster to make the speech of his life, cropped out in Robert Y. Hayne in the United States Circuit Court room just before Judge Hawley took his seat yesterday morning.

Attorney Hayne's slumbering volcano of wrath burst into a lurid flame of invective and indignation the moment the pugnacious Horace W. Philbrook approached him with a peremptory demand that certain remarks made by Hayne be withdrawn from the record.

Philbrook, determined and pale with rage because he had been compared with Judge Stanley in the Garcelon will case, walked briskly to the desk before which Mr. Hayne stood, and said: "I don't consider your remarks about me were professional, sir."

Philbrook continued his denunciation of Hayne's conduct, however, for some moments, and when court convened he moved nervously in his chair, his hands and otherwise manifested an eager desire to become a pugilist for the sake of his wounded honor.

Hayne concluded his argument with a moment, making no reply. He afterwards Rodgers and Henry C. Campbell filled the court with statistical sounds, but Philbrook heeded not their lore, for he was nursing his wrath and glaring at Hayne.

Then court adjourned, whereupon Philbrook nervously walked over to the shorthand reporter's table and asked to see the notes on the objectionable remarks.

But Philbrook only scowled for a moment, making no reply. He afterwards said that he had decided to treat the whole matter with silent contempt, though he denounced the utterances of Hayne as unprofessional in the extreme.

For Calistoga schools. The following order shows how the "Chronicle's" Premium Map of the United States, Canada, British Columbia and Mexico and of the world is appreciated:

Dear Sir: Please send me four "Chronicle" Premium Maps, one for each of my children, and one for my school. One room already has one, and it has proved so much better than we expected that I very much hope to buy one in each room.

CONTRACT VIOLATED.

Property-Owners Complain of Faving Done on Octavia Street.

Cyrus Walker and E. J. York, who are owners of considerable property on Octavia street, between Pacific avenue and Broadway, have filed a protest with the Board of Supervisors against the acceptance of the asphalt block pavement recently put down on that block.

The description of the game is little more than the statement of the fact that Berkeley carried the ball wherever and whenever it pleased. The ball hardly was in Stanford hands, and when it was it remained for such a short space of time that it might properly be called the sole property of the men from Berkeley.

The petitioners allege that the sand blocks are not in the least superior to the concrete foundation of gutters is not five inches deep; the blocks of gutters are not of standard size; the blocks are now working down from an upright position in places, showing that they were not properly laid.

DON'T TAKE MEDICINE.

Disease Is to Be Surely Cured Only by Destroying the Microbes That Cause It.

RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER WILL DO IT.

It Is Pleasant to Take, Efficient and Inexpensive.

One of the surest ways to be sick and keep on being sick is to fill one's self with medicine. It is not infrequently the case that the medicine taken to cure some comparatively minor ailment, such as indigestion, acts as a matter of fact to give it a more serious character.

It is used as water, only in smaller quantities. Its antiseptic power stops fermentation in the stomach and blood, and its germicidal action kills the bacteria that cause disease.
