AND MANAGERS MADE HAPPY.

The Abbott Opera Success-The Specialists at the Bush-Street-" The Black Flag"-The "Orpheus" Run-The Patti Season-Notes.

Our regular theatre-goers, those who make an especial boast of attending every new performance on the night of its presentation, have been a sadly overworked lot during the past week, all on account of the nightly change of programme pre-sented by the Abbott Opera Company. Had the inducements been less tempting, it is probable that many, of even the most enthusiastic worshipers of the stage, would have consented to break their record by skipping a night or two and taking a rest. As it was, however, they couldn't bring themselves to the point of making a possible sacrifice by staying at home, and, as a result, not aly was the Baldwin well filled at every performance, but a same kindly fate was accorded each of the other houses. The Abbott Opera Company, of the other houses. The Abbott Opera Company, now in the middle of its engagement, can look back over the past week with no thoughts than those of self-congratulation, while to the coming week they can look forward with every reasonable hope of a continuance of their flattering success, a success in bright contrast to the previous experience of an Abbott company in this city. Since then, however, there has been a marked improvement in the personnel of the company, while the change for the better in Miss Abbott's vocal powers is especially marked. Add to this the fact only the regular theatrical rate of admission to the Baldwin is charged by the company this season, Baldwin is charged by the company this season, and it will be seen that there is substantial reason for the growth of popularity achieved by the company. Shortly after Phil. Roach had reduced the pany. Shortly after Phil. Roach had reduced the subscription price of his paper from twenty-five to fifteen ceuts a week he was asked by the writer if the reduction had resulted in an increase of circulation. The old veteran hesitated a moment and then thoughtfully stroking his chir, replied: "Well, no; it hasn't increased the circulation any, but it has stoomed a dem winht ion any, but it has stopped a d

There are probably stronger and better equipped opers companies than the Abbott, but they are not traveling through the country singing to dollar-and-a-half admissions. On the whole, the season is proving a treat to San Franciscans, and the results show that San Franciscans know a good thing when they see it.

Despite the attractions elsewhere, the Bushstreet Theatre has been second to none in popular favor during the past week. "The Boston Howard Specialty Company," which is several open lengths ahead of any specialty company that has visited shead of any specialty company that has visited this city for many a long month, has been filling orchestra, dress circle and gallery at every per-formance, with andiences that have been forced to lamp till their respective sides ached at the fresh and catching humor of the comedians at the fresh and catching humor of the comedians and the comical gymnastics of the clowns, while the performances on the triple bars and the glassball shooting were the best ever seen in this city. The company will close its engagement with this evening's performance, and to morrow night "Zitka" will be produced by the H. C. Miner company, which comes highly recommended. The play was written by the late Will Carleton, who, in a fit of despondency rescribe took his own like. play was written by the late Will Carleton, who, in a fit of despondency, recently took his own life, leaving "Zitka," which had never been pro tuesd, as the sole legacy of his little six-year-old daughter, Marie Carlton. The friends of the littl girl importuned several managers to give the play a trial, but in vain, noril Mr. Miner became interested in the child, and he gave the play a proper production is the bope that it might prove a source of revenue to her. The hope was more than realized by thinstantaneous success which greeted the vice, and Mr. Miner then took a ten years' lesse of it, garrantecing a handsome income to little Marie and thus raising her from poverty to a position of moderate wealth. "Zitka" is Russian in character, the plot hinging on the rain of a young girl ter, the plot hinging on the rain of a young girl of the people by an officer of the Imperial Guard. The play is described as being full of dramatic surprises, and its action is said never to lag for a moment. The cast is also said to be exceptionally strong and the costuming elegant.

At the Alcazar Theatre Alice Harrison and Charley Reed have no reason to complain of the lack of patronage accorded their presentation of "Little Jack Sheppard." The play is somewhat acking in finish, and its humor is "so English" in epots as to render many of the intended points either above or beneath the comprehension of the average American. The piece achieved a remarkably long and successful run in New York, and, although the judgment of New York is not always of the best, the fact that it is also a drawing card with San Francisco and lences proves undisprachly attongs the judgment of New York is not always of the best, the fact that it is also a drawing card with San Francisco andiences proves undisputably that there is merit in it. As produced at the Alcazar, the performance is well worth seeing, even it for no other reason than the splendid manner in which it is costumed. The real interest, however, hovers around Alice Harrison and Charley Reed, whose popularity in this city is so firmly rooted that it cannot be shaken, sing they ever so oddly. And, by the way, it can not be denied that Reed is improving as a vocalist. This, however, is a matter of small interest to him, as it is his comedy business that takes, for he is a comedian, although his occasional streaks of bashfulness on the stage shows that he himself is occasionally disturbed by self-entertained doubts on that point. Beside the two favorites, the company also includes some other talent of no mean order, while it may truthfully be said that all the members of the company are pretty successful in entering into the spirit of their respective roles. The success of the piece his been so marked as to demand its retention on the boards for another week.

At the California Theatre, Edwin Thorne and

At the California Theatre, Edwin Thorne and company will finish a financially successful engagement this evening with the last presentation of "The Black Flag," and the Theatre will remain closed for a short time at least.

At the Tivoli Opera House, "Orpheus" will be withdrawn with the close of to-night's perform withdrawn with the close of to-night's performance, after a long and successful run that must be equally gratifying to the management and their excellent company. To-morrow night a double bill will be presented, consisting of the two-act musical extravaganzs, "Nemesis," and the musical farce, "The Goose and the Golden Egg,"

At the Grand Opera House a musical event of the very first prominence is promised for the even-ings of January 24th and 27th and February 1st and 3d, when Madame Adeline Patti will sing in an operatic concert, supported by a quartette of artists of the highest rank, with an orchestra directed by Arditi. In these concerts we shall have a very different kind of enjoyment—the pure art of singing in its most perfect development. There are not a few of us who, if we had to make a choice, would give up all the splendors of the "ensemble" just to hear Patti sing "Ah, forse Ini" or "O Luce." The former can be obtained at any time with money and paine, but the divine gift of perfect song comes so seldom that Patti is alone in her generation. She never can be excelled, and from the present tendencies of art it seems likely that she never will be equalled. Certainly at this time she is unapproached, and while the beauty of her voice and the power of her art appeal to every hearer, it is to those who have heard the most and whose musical sympathies take the widest range, that to hear her again will bring the keenest deartists of the highest rank, with an orchestra diwhose musical sympathies take the widest range, that to hear her again will bring the keenest delight. Mr. Abbey wisely has not attempted to present Madame Patti in opera at this time, but he is giving operatic concerts that in their way are as nearly perfect as concerts can be made. With the peerless Patti, are Madame Scalchi, a great contraito singer, in the music which suits her grand voice and style; Galassi, the superb baritope we all know so well; Novara, who as a base has a great reputation in Europe and the Eastern States, and a French tenor, M. Guille, who is said to be a finished lyric artist. With these Arditi, whose unequaled taste and skill in the orchestral secompaniment of the singers makes him the prince of operatic conductors. The programme of the concert will be made up from those gems of pure Italian vocal melody which the world will not let die.

ALONG THE CABLE ROADS.

Everything Quiet and Orderly Yester

Yesterday was a quiet day along the lines of the Geary and Sutter street railroad lines. The travel yesterday was nearly up to its neual standard. The patrols of police and watchmen along the tracke, whose duty it is to clear the line of any explosive missiles that may be found, are still kept up with relays, each watch being of four hours duration. The minor accidents of the day kept up with relays, each watch being of four hours duration. The minor accidents of the day before, caused by the slidling of trains on the greased rails on the grades, was obviated yesterday by the generous use of sand. The employees of the roads seem to have become accustomed to their duties, and the delay caused by the losing of the rope, running into switches, bumpers, etc., are becoming less frequent. The offices of the Superintendents of both lines are literally beseiged with applicants for work on the cars, but the majority are necessarily turned away because of their coming "too late."

The omnibuses of the carmen's line, on Post street, were poorly patronized yesterday.

Several executive meetings of the strikers were held yesterday and last night in their headquarters, on Pacific street. No business of importance was transacted, the time being mostly spent in a gloomy discussion of the outlook, and in cursing the Superintendents and Directors of both roads. The strikers deny the rumbers had made piteous appeals to be taken back by the companies. They also deny that the funds received by contribution and otherwise, or most of it, finds its way in the private coffers of the self-constituted leaders.

MRS. HILDEBRANT'S CONDITION. MRS. HILDEBRANT'S CONDITION.

At a late hour last night Mrs, William Hildebrant, the lady passenger injured by the explosion on Post street, was resting as easily as could be expected. Opiates are administered to relieve her intense suffering and her most intimate friends are depied access. The attending physician stated, after his visit last evening, that she had recovered as much of her strength as could be expected. She has not recovered the use of her limbs and is yet very low.

THE LOST "ATLANTIC."

Major Blakeney's Beport of the Investi-

Mayor T. J. Blakeney has submitted his report of the investigation of the wreck of the whaling bark Atlantic on the 16th day of December, 1886, to S. I. Kimball, General Superintendent of the United States Life Saving Service. The report contains a lengthy summary of the evidence taken on the investigation and concludes as follows:

on the investigation and concludes as follows:

There were twenty-seven lives lost, and eleven saved from the wreck. But one body of the lost, that of Joseph Siedley, has, as yet, been recovered, although the beach for five miles has been vigilantly patrolled ever since the disaster occurred.

The first news of the wreck spread before the public was highly sensational and incorrect, causing the Life-Saving crew to be roundly blamed, but, since the facts are more fully and correctly understood, public sentiment has undergone a marked change, and instead of receiving censure, the crew is now commended for its prompt, intelligent and efficient efforts to save life and property, as well as for its kindly and humane attentions to the survivors of the unfortunate bark.

No wreck having occurred near this station for kindly and humane attentions to the survivors of the unfortunate bark.

No wreck having occurred near this station for some considerable time, it had been taken for granted by those who were not well informed on the subject that the crew had become lax in the discharge of their duties, but the evidence taken in this investigation clearly establishes the fact that the two parcolmen were on the alert and at their proper places on the beach, and that the remainder of the crew were where they belonged at that hour of the night, in their bunks, asleep. It therefore appears from the testimony that the keeper and crew of the stand off all that could have been done under the circumstances, and their conduct on this occasion reflects crecit both upon themselves and the service. In closing this report, I desire to acknowledge my obligations to Captain J. W. White, U. S. R. M., Assistant Inspector Thirteenth U. S. Life-saving District, for valuable assistance rendered during the investigation.

THE DOLAN MURDER.

An Evening Examination by Judge Horn blower.
At 7 o'clock last evening, the examination of William Rowan, charged with the murder of Michael Dolan, was resumed in the Police Court. Patrick H. Desmond, who witnessed the shooting, testified, after which the prosecution rested its case. The defence then called Edward Dunbar, Officer J. E. Burris, Detective John Coffey and Policeman L. Cummings, who testified to the bad character and dangerous temper of deceased. The case was then continued until Wednesday next, at 2 P. M.

Killed by a Dummy.

On Friday night, when the last train on the line of steam cars running from Union street to the Presidio was passing Seaside Gardens, two soldiers attempted to board the steam dummy. One of these men, named George Camper, fell, and before the car could be stopped it had nassed over his body, causing instant death. Both soldiers were the worse for liquor. Peter Stone, the engineer, surrendered himself at the Old City Hall early yesterday morning, and was released on his own recognizance after being booked for manslaughter. An inquest was held on Camper's body yesterday at the Presidio, and the jury found that he had met his death through his own carelessness and negligence, and exonerated the railroad em-and negligence, and exonerated the railroad employees from all blame.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Forty Tens of Gunpowder Exploded on the Ocean Beach.

TWO MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED.

A Beached Vessel Blows Up and Wrecks the Cliff House, the Sutro Residence and Other Build-gunpowder explosion occurred on the beach north of the Cliff House, near Point Lobos, sending destruction in every direction and injuring three of the lifeboat men of the Coast Life Say. ing Service. An ALTA reporter hastened to the scene of the disaster, but at that late hour and in the darkness and fog it was impossible to gather more than the following facts:

At 12 o'clock last night a telephone despatch was received at the Merchants' Exchange, from Point Lobos Station, stating that the schooner Parallel had gone ashore near that point and was a total wreck. The schooner sailed for Astoria on Friday afternoon under command of Captain Miller. When first discovered, last night about 9:80, she was lying high and dry on the beach, just north of Seal Rocks, broadside on, and was abandoned. It is supposed that she was putting back on account of strong winds, and, the wind dying out, she drifted with the ebb tide upon the rocks. The crew is supposed to have taken the life-hoat and made their way to town. The Parallel was built in 1868, and is owned by Captain S. B. Peterson. She is 142 tons burthen, and was S B. Peterson. She is 142 tons burthen, and was soing up in ballast.

So much of this item was in type at 1 o'clock this morning when a second telephone despatch had been received stating that the schooner Parallel, instead of being in ballast as at first reported, had on board forty tons of gunpowder and that the whole of this immense quantity had exploded at once, wrecking the Cliff House, the Merchante' Exchange sighting station at Point Lobes, and badly shattering everything within a radius of passive mile.

Merchants Exchange signing station at Point Lobos, and badly shattering everything within a radius of nearly a mile.

Examination by an ALTA reporter on the ground showed that the whole north end of the Clift House, for a distance of 200 feet, is in ruins. The Cliff Cottage is entirely desolated, no portion of it being left standing. The destruction extended up into the Sutro residence and grounds on Sutro Heights, where the framework of the house was destroyed, and all the glass in the large conservatory shattered. There is not a whole pane of glass left within a radius of a mile from the scene of the explosion. For a thousand yards up and down the beach on each side of where the wreck lay, the beach is strewn with debris and fragments of the wreck.

It could not be learned at the hour of going to press whether or not any lives were loet, but three members of the lifeboat crew were badly injured, two of them dangerously. These two Harry Wilson and John Smith were standing on a bluff, shout 250 yards above the wreck. The force of the explosion drove them bodily into the bluff. The bluff caved in on them, carrying the injured men nearly down to the beach with the debris. An ambulance was telephoned for, but when it arrived they were found too badly hurt to be removed, and they had to send into the city for a doctor.

John Garrity, the keeper of the Seal Rock House, was lying in bed, asleep, half a mile from the wreck, when a piece of heavy iron came flying through the roof of the house, landing on the bed by his side, without injuring him.

The Merchants' Exchange sighting-statation and the house in which the keeper, John Hyslop, resided, are demolished, and Hyslop found his aunt and female cousin, with whom he resided, prostrated in the hills, but otherwise uninjured.

The sound of the explosion was heard in the heart of the city. At the Merchants' Exchange and in several down-town buildings, windows and doors rattled, but at the time it was thought to be an earthquake.

The Cliff Honse bar-room is in ruins; the lower balcony facing the sea is entirely gone; the north end of the upper balcony is swept away and the east badly shattered. The damage to the Cliff House is $20,000 and to the Sutro Heights property $10,000. The Cliff cottage, which is entirely gone, was valued at $7,500. The roof of the Seal Rock House, the Pavilion and the railroad depot are perforated with holes from flying debris.

A piece of the mainmast and the mainsail of the wreck, weighing over two tons, was carried 1,000 yards, clear over the Cliff House, and deposited on the beach below.

Three steam tags are lying around outside, but unable to approach the scene on account of high surf. A singular fact is that the schooner drifted in with all sails set. The crew have not been how in with all sails set. The crew have not been heard of and it is supposed that their knowledge of the dangerous nature of the cargo was the reason they abandoned her.

Fragments of two life boats have just been discovered on the beach, rendering it possible that the crew of the blown-up vessel have either been drowned or blown to pieces though there is still drowned or blown to pieces though there is still
