AN EXCITED CONVENTION.

At its first day's sitting the Stockton Convention gave apparent indication that it was not blind to its duty to be in fact as well as in name a deliberative body; but unfortunately this promise was deceiving, for yesterday the Convention was in a different mood. It forgot its sober good sense and gave a loose rein to prejudice and passion. There were scenes of excitement and turbulence which did the delegates no credit and should have been avoided. It became apparent early in the morning session that the Convention was not in the dispassionate mood in which it might have been supposed a good night's sleep would leave the delegates, and the introduction of the vehement resolutions emanating from the very radical Committee on Platform was all that was needed to put the finishing touches to the boisterous humor that prevailed for the rest | ing Blaine of Maine will make arrangements of the day. Many country delegates had to return home by water, as the delegates, come to the Convention with their imagina- who took along only their Summer clothing, tions fired with ideas of plots, conspiracies and monopolies, and it needed but little to fan their prejudices into genuine excitement. A long course of artful agitation and misrepresentation preceded the election of delegates in most of the counties, and the result was the bringing to the front in this gathering of all the most radical elements from all parts of the State, and hence it was not a fairly representative body. If it had been, it would not have done what this Convention did. Amidst the excitement and illadvised doings of the delegates in their collective capacity, however, there were several individual acts worthy of praise. Mr. F. G. Newlands' defence of Judge Field-bearing in mind that it was delivered to an angry and impatient audience—is beyond all commendation as a brave, manly and able vindication of California's foremost statesman from the attacks of his unworthy enemies. Chairman White also deserves an acknowledgment for refusing to listen to the proposal to suppress discussion and for insisting on fair play.

THE FIELD RESOLUTION.

By a very large majority the Stockton Conntion adopted a resolution denouncing the Presidential aspirations of Justice Field and nstructing its delegates to oppose his nomination. This action is a product of preju lice and passion that reflects disgrace on the Convention, but cannot harm the man at hom it is aimed. It may make his nominaion for President impossible, but his charter is above the reach of such malignancy and would remain without stain though s indred Conventions, each more unanimous an that at Stockton, should make it the arget of their opprobium. The action of he Stockton Convention does not express the liberate, dispassionate opinion of the State pon the record of Judge Field. It is an allition of passion of which some who gave ray to it will live to be ashamed. Some of men who are responsible for it were a ew years ago the loudest in support of Judge. ield, and their present attitude is as little editable as it is consistent. For his perment fame Justice Field can afford to apeal from Philip drunk to Philip soberm an excited political convention to the lliberate judgment of his fellow-citizens nade up and expressed when the present mporary craze shall have passed away.

TILDEN DECLINES.

Samuel J. Tilden has at last broken his g silence, which many have thought was o tenaciously preserved, and it is to say at he cannot accept the nomination for the sidency. He declined it in 1880 on ounds which are just as strong now as the then, and he has since done nothing to encourage the belief that he would alter the de termination then expressed to permanently withdraw from political contests. But on the bare, unsupported hope that he might be induced to change his mind and undertake the labors of a campaign, the Democratic party in every part of the country has testified its strong desire to put him at the head of the ticket and entreated his acceptance. When has there ever before been such a spectacle witnessed in American politics? Such a demonstration of affection and veneration is the crowning glory of Tilden's long lifetime. But as its readers know, the ALTA predicted many weeks ago that Tilden would not accept, and that though it was well enough to instruct delegates for him as a testimonial of personal regard, the Democratic party must really look elsewhere for a candidate. For doing this the Alta was denounced as unfaithful to Tilden; but its prediction has now been verified by his positive declination.

THE CANAL FRANCHISE.

Secretary Frelinghuysen has asked Congress for an appropriation of $250,000 to buy from the Government of Nicaragua certain rights for the construction of an interoceanic canal. A paragraph appropriating the amount named has been attached to the Consular and Diplomatic bill in the Senate, and has been under discussion in secret session. There are several mysterious features about the affair, but none more mysterious than the reasons for the attempted secrecy in the Senate, since the appropriation cannot be made without sending the bill back to the House of Representatives, when the whole secret will come out. If the Nicaragua proposition, as may be supposed, is merely to sell to the United States for $250,000 the exclusive right to dig a canal on that route, the bill ought not to pass. Our Government has no interest in buying territorial rights for a canal until it decides to build the canal, and when it does that it need not pay anything for the privilege, as Nicaragua would be glad enough to donate the right of way, and there would be no fear of competition. It is not easy to understand what there is worth buying, and especially what there is worth paying $250,000 for. If Nicaragua has put up for sale at auction the exclusive right of canalization, she has done a very short-sighted thing, for should the concession fall into the hands of the Panama Company it would prevent the Nicaragua canal from being constructed. But even if the proposal to purchase the privilege for the United States springs out of a desire to prevent some other Government or company from acquiring it, still it would be folly to pay a quarter of a million for a thing before we know that it will be of any value to us. If Congress should previously decide to spend a hundred millions in building the Nicaragua canal, it would be quite the correct thing to buy this franchise, but it is a case where Franklin's advice never to buy a thing you don't need because it is cheap comes in pat. As long as it is so very improbable that the United States Government will burden itself with the construction of a canal, it should not invest in the franchise.

As a Presidential election approaches, the Administration becomes more conscious of the necessity of enforcing the Chinese Restriction Act. Secretary Folger, being informed that there was nothing to prevent a Chinaman from getting one return certificate at Portland and then coming to San Francisco and getting another, has issued an order that customs officers shall confine the issue of such certificates to Chinese who depart directly for foreign ports. This is a commonsense rule which should have been thought of sooner.

SomeBody has given circulation to the report that the California delegation now visitpositively refuse to undergo again the sufferings which they experienced in the icy climate encountered while traversing the State of Massachusetts.

OSCAR WILDE, who has been married a week. writes a letter in which he announces, for the benefit of the public, that he has not been disappointed in married life and that, as Lord Beaconsfield taught the Peers of England a new style of oratory, so he (Wilde) intends to set an "example of the prevailing influence of art in matrimony." This is next in coarse brutality to the famous article in which the elder Bennett announced his marriage to the readers of the New York Herald. Such a performance shows that whatever else estheticism may mean, as exemplified in the conduct of its self-constituted apostle, it has no connection with real refinement or even common decency.

"He does not suit England," gleefully announces the Chronicle, referring to Blainewhence it deduces the inference that he ought to suit everybody else, and the Irish voters in particular. He seems to suit the London Times to a nicety. It reaches out to shake hands with the Republican party and congratulate it on the nomination of such a conspicuous and respected politician."

A Curious Suicide.

A curious suicide took place in a hotel at Mantua the other day, and is being variously commented upon. The person was surnamed the Duke of St. Stephen. His real name was Zuliani. No one knew anything about his family or origin. He seemed to be rich, and spent money as freely as a nabob, although all his known substance consisted nabob, although all his known substance consisted in five francs a day. Some people say that he had found a treasure in the place where he lived, and hence was called the Duke of St. Stephen (as Danton was called Count of Monte Cristo.) Anyhow, he arrived at Mantua, went to the Croce Verde Hotel, and there killed himself. Why, no one knows. A few days previously, he had bought carriages, horses and a country house. He left a letter for his wife, in which said that the secret of his riches would go into the grave with him. He was only 40 years of age, and left nothing to his wife. Nothing more is known of this extraordinary man, who for two whole years kept a whole town in wonder.—Modern Age for June.

A White Rainbow.

M. Cornu lately described to the French Academy of Sciences a white rainbow which he saw on the morning of the 28th November. There had been a heavy hoar-frost, followed by a thick, low fog. This rainbow was wholly white, without even as much iridization as is noticeable in halos, and had a fleecy appearance like that of the fumes of phosphureted hydrogen, or the smoke from the mouth of a cannon.

European Forests.

Out of a total area of nearly 21,000,000 acres, the woods and copees of Ireland are now less than 380,000 acres. In Great Britain out of nearly 57,000,000 acres, 2,500,000 acres are now thus returned. The forests of Europe are estimated to cover 500,000,000 acres, or nearly 20 per cent. of the surface of the Continent.

THE SAGE OF GRAMERCY

Insensible to All Feeling of Personal Ambition,

BUT STILL KEENLY ALIVE

To the Welfare of the Republic-His Firm and Final Response to the Call of His Countrymen.

New York, June 11th .- The following communication from Samuel J. Tilden has been given to the Associated Press:

New York, June 10, 1884. To Daniel Manning, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, New York: In my letter of June 18, 1880, addressed to the delegates from the State of New York to the Democratic National Convention, I said: "Having now borne faithfully my full share of labors and care in the public service, and bearing marks of its burdens, I desire nothing so much as an honorable discharge. I wish to lay down the honors and toils of even a quasi-party leadership, and to seek the repose of private life." In renouncing a nomination for the Presidency I do so with no doubt in my mind as to the vote of the State of New York or of the United States, but because I believe it is a renunciation of a re-election to the Presidency. To those who think my renomination and re-election indispensable to an effectual vindication of the right of the people to elect their rulers—violated in my person—I have accorded as long a reserve of my decision as possible, but I cannot overcome my repugnance to enter into a new engagement, which involves

FOUR YEARS OF CEASELESS TOIL. The dignity of the Presidential office is above a merely personal ambition, but it creates, in me, no illusion. Its value is as a great power for good to the country. I said four years ago: "In accepting the nomination, knowing, as I do, therefore, from fresh experience, how great the difference is between gliding through an official routine and working out a reform of systems and policies, it is impossible for me to contemplate what needs to be done in the Federal Administration without an anxious sense of the difficulties of the undertaking. If summoned by the suffrages of my countrymen to attempt this work, I shall endeavor, with God's help, to be the efficient instrument of their will. Such a work of renovation

MANY YEARS OF MISRUILE : Such a reform of systems and policies, to which I would cheerfully have sacrificed all that remained to me of health and life, is now, I fear, beyond my strength." My purpose to withdraw from further public service, and the grounds of it, were, at that time, well known to you and to others. And when, at Cincinnati, though respecting my wishes yourselves, you communicated to me an appeal from many valued friends to relinquish that purpose, I reiterated my determination unconditionally. In the four years which have since elapsed nothing has occurred to weaken, but everything to strengthen, the considerations which induced my withdrawal from public life. To all who have addressed me on the subject my intention has been frankly communicated. Several of my most confidential friends, under the sanction of their own names, have

PUBLICLY STATED MY DETERMINATION To be irrevocable. That I have occasion now to consider the question is an event for which I have no responsibility. The appeal made to me by the Democratic masses, with apparent unanimity, to serve them once more, is entitled to the most deferential consideration and would inspire a disposition to do anything desired of me if it were consistent with my judgment of duty. I believe that there is no instrumentality in human society so potential in its influence upon mankind for good or evil as the Government's machinery for administering justice and for making and executing the laws. Not all the eleemosynary institutions of private benevolence to which philanthropists may devote their lives are so fruitful in benefits as the rescue and preservation of this machinery from the perversions that make it THE INSTRUMENT OF CONSPIRACY, FRAUD AND CRIME

Against the most sacred rights and interests of the people. For fifty years, as a private citizen, never contemplating an official career, I have de voted at least as much thought and effort to the duty of influencing aright the action of the govtal institutions of my country as to all other objects. I have never accepted official service except for a brief period, for a special purpose, and only when the occasion seemed to require from me that sacrifice of private preferences to public welfare. I undertook the State administration of New York because it was supposed that in that way only could the executive power be arrayed on the side of the reforms to which, as a private citizen, I had given three years of my life. I accepted the nomination for the Presidency in 1876 because of the general conviction that my candidacy would best present

THE ISSUE OF REFORM

Which the Democratic majority of the people desired to have worked out it the Federal Government as it had been in that of the State of New York. I believed that I had strength enough then to renovate the adminstration of the Government of the United States, and, at the close of my term, to hand over the trust to a successor faithful to the same policy. Though anxious to seek the repose of private life, I nevertheless acted upon the idea that every power is a trust and involves a duty. In reply to the address of the committee communicating my nomination, I depicted the difficulties of the undertaking and likened my feelings in engaging in it to those of a soldier entering battle, but I did not withhold the entire consecration of my powers to the public service. Twenty years of continuous maladministration under the demoralizing influences of internecing war and of bad finance have infected the whole governmental system of the United States with THE CANCEROUS GROWTHS OF FALSE CONSTRUC-

TIONS AND CORRUPT PRACTICES. Powerful classes have acquired pecuniary interests in official abuses, and the moral standards of the people have been impaired. To redress these evils is a work of great difficulty and labor, and cannot be accomplished without the most ener-getic and efficient personal action on the part of the Chief Executive of the Republic. The canvass and administration which it is desired that I should undertake would embrace a period of nearly five years, nor can I admit any illusion as to their burdens. Three years of experience in the en-deavor to reform the Municipal Government of the City of New York and two years of experience in renovating the administration of the State of New York have made me familiar with the requirements of such a work. At the present time the considerations which induced my action in 1880 have become imperative. I ought not to assume a task which I have not the physical strength to carry through. To reform the Administration of the Federal Government, to realize my own ideal and to fulfil the just expections of the people, would indeed warrant, as they could alone compensate, the sacrifices which the undertaking would involve. But in my condition of

ADVANCING YEARS AND DECLINING STRENGTH, I feel no assurance of my ability to accomplish those objects. I am, therefore, constrained to say definitely that I cannot now assume the labors of an administration or of a canvass. Undervaluing in no wise that best gift of heaven, the occasion and the power sometimes bestowed upon a mere individual to communicate an impulse for good, grateful beyond all words to my fellow-countrymen who would assign such a beneficent func tion to me, I am consoled by the reflection that neither the Democratic party nor the Republican, for whose future that party is the best guarantee, is now, or ever can be, dependent upon any one man for their successful prog-ress in the path of a noble destiny. Having given to their welfare whatever of health and strength I possessed, or could borrow from the future, and having reached the term of my capacity for such labors as their welfare now demands, I but submit to the will of God in deeming my public career forever closed.

[Signed,] SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

HON. THOS, A. HENDRICKS. Tilden's Declination No Surprise or Disappointment to Him.

Indianapolis, June 11th.—Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks, in an interview concerning Tilden's letter of declination, said the news did not surprise him, for when he visited Tilden in August last that gentleman very firmly announced his intention to remain permanently out of politics. On his succeeding visit in April last the same determination was expressed. Hendricks thought On his succeeding visit in April last the same de-termination was expressed. Hendricks thought there was little doubt that the old ticket would have been nominated at the Chicago Convention if it had not been for the declination of to-day. He said that the demand for it among the De-mocracy was almost universal and greater than any movement of the kind he had ever seen in politics. Personally he felt no great disappointment. He did not want the office of Vice-President eight years ago and did not want it now. If the old ticket had remained in the field, he should have considered an election to that place a great honor. ticket had remained in the field, he should have considered an election to that place a great honor, conferred by the people as a rebuke to what they considered a great wrong. It would have prevented the seating of Hayes in 1876 from becoming a precedent for future elections. Hendricks added that only by an expression of the indignation of the people would he have regarded an election to the Vice-Presidency as an honor to be sought.

OCEAN BEACH PAVILION.

CRAND PUBLIC OPENING!

Best Appointed Pleasure Resort on the Pacific Coast.

The lessee of this splendid Pavilion, situated at the terminus of the Ocean Beach Railroad, takes pleasure in announcing to his friends and the public that it is now completed, and will be formally opened and dedicated as a popular pleasure resort on SATURDAY AND SUNDAY NEXT,

June 14th and 15th. When all are invited to be present, as every preparation has been made to entertain those who may favor him with their patronage.

This New Pavilion,

Which is a beautiful specimen of the architect's taste and builder's skill, is well situated for health and recreation. It is convenient to the Park, faces the beach highway where fast stock can always be seen, and the billows of the vast Pacific break on the smooth and sandy beach within a stone's throw of its doors. The celebrated SEAL ROCKS, with their interesting tenants, are fully in sight, and ships and steamers, sailing to and from the Golden Gate, make the scene still more lively and picturesque. Telescopes for the use of visitors in all the towers, and telephone communication with the city.

The Interior of the Building

Is light, spacious and airy, handsomely finished in every detail, and the main dancing and promenade hall, 170x110 feet, will accommodate over 2,000 gruests. There are handsomely furnished drawing-rooms, and gas and water in all parts of the edifice. It is impossible to give a full description of this splendid Pavilion in the limits of an ordinary advertisement, and the lessee is therefore desirous that all should see for themselves, and enjoy its beauties and facilities.

The Thoroughly-Equipped Bar

In the southern wing of the building is seventy-four feet long. At its elegantly-made counters can be obtained, from skilled barkeepers, the choicest refreshments, as all the liquors are furnished by the well-known establishment of A. P. Hotaling & Co., including the celebrated J. H. Cutter Whisky. The ruling price of drinks will be 10 cents.

Special Notice.

Lodges, societies, families, luncheon and picnic par-ties, schools and clubs, who wish to enjoy a festive time by themselves, on a week day, will find the Ocean Beach Pavilion a most desirable place for the Ocean Beach Paylinoi a most desirable place for the purpose; the accommodations first-class, and charges very moderate. Special rates will be made where the party is large, Excellent music furnished, and the spacious dancing hall boasts the best floor ever laid in the State. This hall has also a roomy gallery, and, in the north-end a neat stage, where specches, recitations, dramatic and musical performances may be given, admirably adapting it for school holiday excursions.

cursions.
The Pavilion can be reached by the Haightstreet cable road, connecting with the Ocean Beach
Railroad, in thirty-five minutes from the Oakland Ferry, at the trifling cost of ten cents,
